Civil Procedure — Appeal — Whether appeal had become academic — Appellant after being sworn in as Sabah Chief Minister (‘CM’) following general election lost support of majority of members of State Legislative Assembly due to defections — Defections caused leader of rival faction in Assembly to gain majority support of House and be sworn in as new CM in place of appellant D — Appellant lost suit to declare swearing-in of new CM as unconstitutional and void — Whether appellant’s appeal against trial court’s verdict became academic and inconsequential when facts showed new CM had support of 52 members of 60-seat House as against eight for appellant — Whether appellant had no prospect of returning as CM even if he succeeded in the appeal — Whether court would not exercise discretionary power to grant declaratory relief if issue in dispute ceased to be a live one and had become purely academic E

The results of the 14th General Election (‘GE14’) on 9 May 2018 saw a tie for F the 60-member Sabah State Legislative Assembly (‘the Assembly’) between two coalition factions. One faction was the Barisan Nasional of Sabah (BN-Sabah)
— a coalition of eight political parties led by the incumbent Sabah Chief Minister (‘CM’) Tan Sri Musa bin Hj Aman (‘Musa’). The other faction was a G coalition of three political parties led by Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie bin Hj Apdal (‘Shafie’). Both the factions won 29 seats each. The remaining two seats in the Assembly were won by the STAR political party. STAR threw its support behind BN-Sabah giving it a simple majority of the seats in the Assembly over Shafie’s faction. That majority support allowed Musa to be sworn in as CM by the State’s Governor (‘the TYT’) pursuant to art 6(3) of the State’s Constitution H
(‘the Constitution’). Two days later, six BN-Sabah State Assemblymen defected to Shafie’s camp with signed statutory declarations (‘SDs’) declaring their support for Shafie. After interviewing the defectors and being satisfied that Shafie now enjoyed the confidence of the majority of the elected members of the Assembly, the TYT, pursuant to art 7(1) of the Constitution, called on I Musa to resign as CM along with his Cabinet. Musa refused to resign.
Exercising his discretion under art 6(3) read together with art 10(2)(a) of the Constitution, the TYT nevertheless appointed Shafie as CM and swore in Shafie’s Cabinet. Musa filed an originating summons (‘OS’) against the TYT

- A and Shafie for a host of declaratory reliefs including a declaration that he remained the lawful CM, that Shafie's appointment as CM was ultra vires the Constitution and null and void, that the TYT acted unconstitutionally in appointing Shafie and his Cabinet and that the TYT and Shafie were liable to pay him damages. A similar OS was filed against Shafie and two others by
- B Datuk Jahid @ Noordin bin Jahim ('Jahid') for, inter alia, declarations that: (a) he remained the lawful Minister for Local Government and Housing in Sabah; and (b) that Musa was the lawful CM and the appointment and swearing in of Shafie and his Cabinet was ultra vires the Constitution and null and void. The High Court dismissed both the OS resulting in the instant two
- C appeals. The High Court held that: (i) with the defection of the six BN-Sabah State Assemblymen to Shafie's faction, Musa lost the confidence of the majority of the elected members of the Assembly; (ii) the passing of a vote of no-confidence in the Assembly was not the only means to ascertain whether Musa had lost the confidence of the majority of the Assemblymen and the TYT
- D could determine that issue by relying on other extraneous evidence such as his interviews of the six defectors and the contents of their respective SDs; (iii) art 7(1) of the Constitution made it mandatory for Musa to resign along with his Cabinet when he lost the confidence of the majority of the Assemblymen and by refusing to do so, Musa and his Cabinet were deemed to have vacated
- E their respective offices; and (iv) the appointment of Shafie as CM to replace Musa was valid under art 6(3) of the Constitution. The parties agreed that the outcome of Musa's instant appeal would determine Jahid's appeal. Prior to the appeal hearing, the court allowed Shafie's application under r 7 of the Rules of the Court of Appeal 1994 to admit as further evidence a letter issued by the
- F Secretary of the Assembly annexing a list of the names of all the Assemblymen, the constituencies they represented and their political affiliations. The list showed that Musa's faction only had eight seats in the Assembly. Based on that fresh evidence, Shafie raised a preliminary objection ('PO') at the hearing of Musa's appeal that the appeal ought to be struck out without hearing of the
- G merits as it had become academic. Shafie said the outcome of the appeal was inconsequential as the fresh evidence showed that he (Shafie) had the support of 52 members of the Assembly as against eight for Musa. Shafie also said that at the first meeting of the Assembly following the GE14, the House passed an overwhelming vote of confidence in him.
- H

Held, upholding the PO and unanimously dismissing both the appeals without considering their merits:

- I (1) The court would not exercise its discretionary power to make a declaratory judgment when the issue in dispute was purely academic. The court should not be required to answer an academic question or issue which was no longer a live one (see para 63).
- (2) The declaratory reliefs sought by the appellants were private law in nature and even though important, the matters had been overtaken by subsequent events which rendered them academic. Even if Tan Sri Musa succeeded in his appeal, the outcome would remain academic because Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie would still remain as CM because of the majority support he enjoyed (see para 71).

- (3) Although the issue as to who was the rightful CM was significant, it was not of outstanding public importance because even if the appellants succeeded, that would not make Tan Sri Musa the new CM again as he did not meet the threshold under art 6(3) of the Sabah Constitution. The High Court did not err when it refused the declaratory and injunctive reliefs sought by the appellants (see para 72).

[Bahasa Malaysia summary]

Keputusan Pilihan Raya Umum ke-14 ('PRU14') pada 9 Mei 2018 adalah sama bagi 60 anggota Dewan Undangan Negeri Sabah ('Majlis') antara dua gabungan pakatan. Salah satu pakatan ialah Barisan Nasional Sabah (BN-Sabah) — gabungan lapan parti politik yang diketuai oleh Ketua Menteri Sabah ('KM'), Tan Sri Musa bin Hj Aman ('Musa'). Pakatan lain adalah gabungan tiga parti politik yang diketuai oleh Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie bin Hj Apdal ('Shafie'). Kedua-dua pakatan masing-masing memenangi 29 kerusi. Baki dua kerusi dalam Majlis dimenangi oleh parti politik STAR. STAR memberikan sokongan kepada BN-Sabah yang memberikannya majoriti mudah untuk kerusi di Dewan mengatasi pakatan Shafie. Sokongan majoriti tersebut membenarkan Musa diangkat sumpah sebagai KM oleh Gabenor Kerajaan Negeri ('TYT') menurut perkara 6(3) Perlembagaan Kerajaan Negeri ('Perlembagaan tersebut'). Dua hari kemudian, enam Anggota Dewan Undangan Negeri BN-Sabah membelot ke kem Shafie dengan pernyataan berkanun yang ditandatangani ('SD') yang menyatakan sokongan mereka kepada Shafie. Setelah menemu ramah para pembelot dan berpuas hati bahawa Shafie kini mendapat kepercayaan majoriti anggota Majlis yang terpilih, TYT, menurut perkara 7(1) Perlembagaan tersebut, meminta Musa untuk meletak jawatan sebagai KM bersama dengan Kabinetnya. Musa enggan meletakkan jawatan. Dalam melaksanakan budi bicaranya di bawah perkara 6(3) yang dibaca bersama dengan perkara 10(2)(a) Perlembagaan tersebut, TYT tetap melantik Shafie sebagai KM dan menerima sumpah Shafie dalam Kabinet. Musa mengemukakan saman pemula ('SP') terhadap TYT dan Shafie untuk beberapa deklarasi relief termasuk deklarasi bahawa dia tetap KM yang sah, bahawa pelantikan Shafie sebagai KM adalah ultra vires Perlembagaan tersebut dan tidak sah dan terbatal, bahawa TYT bertindak secara tidak berpelembagaan dalam melantik Shafie dan Kabinetnya dan bahawa TYT dan Shafie bertanggungjawab untuk membayar ganti rugi kepadanya. SP yang serupa telah difailkan terhadap Shafie dan dua yang lain oleh Datuk Jahid @ Noordin bin Jahim ('Jahid') untuk, antara lain, deklarasi-deklarasi bahawa: (a) dia tetap menjadi Menteri Kerajaan Tempatan dan Perumahan yang sah di Sabah; dan (b) bahawa Musa adalah KM yang sah dan pelantikan dan

- A mengangkat sumpah Shafie dan Kabinetnya adalah ultra vires Perlembagaan tersebut dan adalah terbatal dan tidak sah. Mahkamah Tinggi menolak kedua-dua SP tersebut yang menyebabkan dua rayuan ini. Mahkamah Tinggi memutuskan bahawa: (i) dengan pembelotan enam Anggota Dewan Undangan Negeri BN-Sabah terhadap parti Shafie, Musa kehilangan kepercayaan majoriti anggota Dewan Undangan Negeri; (ii) lulus undi tidak percaya pada Majlis itu bukan satu-satunya cara untuk memastikan sama ada Musa kehilangan kepercayaan majoriti Adun dan TYT dapat menentukan isu itu dengan bergantung pada bukti lain seperti wawancara mengenai enam pembelot dan isi SD masing-masing; (iii) perkara 7(1) Perlembagaan tersebut mewajibkan Musa mengundurkan diri bersama dengan Kabinetnya ketika beliau kehilangan kepercayaan majoriti AdUN dan jika enggan berbuat sedemikian, Musa dan Kabinetnya dianggap telah mengosongkan jawatan masing-masing; dan (iv) pelantikan Shafie sebagai KM untuk menggantikan Musa berlaku di bawah perkara 6(3) Perlembagaan tersebut. Pihak-pihak bersetuju bahawa keputusan rayuan Musa ini akan menentukan rayuan Jahid. Sebelum perbicaraan rayuan tersebut, mahkamah telah membenarkan permohonan Shafie berdasarkan k 7 Kaedah-Kaedah Mahkamah Rayuan 1994 untuk menerima sebagai bukti selanjutnya sepucuk surat yang dikeluarkan oleh Setiausaha Dewan yang melampirkan senarai nama semua ADUN, kawasan pilihan raya mereka mewakili dan gabungan politik mereka. Senarai tersebut menunjukkan bahawa parti Musa hanya mempunyai lapan kerusi dalam Dewan. Berdasarkan keterangan baru itu, Shafie mengemukakan bantahan awal ('BA') semasa perbicaraan rayuan Musa bahawa rayuan itu patut dibatalkan tanpa mendengar merit kerana telah menjadi akademik. Shafie mengatakan keputusan rayuan itu tidak penting kerana keterangan baru itu menunjukkan bahawa beliau (Shafie) mendapat sokongan 52 anggota Dewan berbanding lapan untuk Musa. Shafie juga mengatakan bahawa pada mesyuarat pertama Perhimpunan selepas PRU14, Dewan itu memberikan undi percaya yang luar biasa kepadanya.

Diputuskan, mengekalkan BA dan sebulat suara menolak kedua-dua rayuan tanpa mempertimbangkan merit:

- H (1) Mahkamah tidak boleh menggunakan kuasa budi bicaranya untuk membuat penghakiman deklaratif jika isu yang dipertikaikan adalah semata-mata akademik. Mahkamah tidak patut dikehendaki menjawab persoalan atau isu yang telah akademik (lihat perenggan 63).
- I (2) Relief-relief deklarasi yang dipohon oleh perayu-perayu adalah bersifat undang-undang persendirian dan meskipun penting, perkara-perkara itu telahpun diambil alih oleh peristiwa berikutnya yang menjadikannya akademik. Walau pun Tan Sri Musa berjaya dalam rayuannya, keputusan itu adalah akademik kerana Datuk Sri Mohd Shafie masih kekal sebagai KM kerana sokongan majoriti yang dinikmatinya (lihat perenggan 71).

- (3) Walaupun isu siapa KM yang sah adalah penting, ia bukan kepentingan awam yang luar biasa kerana meskipun perayu-perayu telah berjaya, ia tidak menjadikan Tan Sri Musa KM baru lagi kerana beliau tidak memenuhi ambang di bawah perkara 6(3) Perlembagaan Sabah. Mahkamah Tinggi tidak terkhilaf apabila menolak relif-relif deklarasi dan injunktif yang dipohon oleh perayu-perayu (lihat perenggan 72).]

INTRODUCTION

- G [1] Both these appeals were filed by the appellants/plaintiffs against the decision of the High Court at Kota Kinabalu given on 7 November 2018, in dismissing the appellants/plaintiffs' claim in both the originating summons with costs. Both the appeals were heard together by us as all the issues were interrelated. Both appeals emanate from the dismissal of Tan Sri Musa bin Hj
- H Aman ('Tan Sri Musa') as the Chief Minister ('CM') of the State of Sabah by the Governor ('the TYT'). The common issue in both appeals is the constitutionality of the appointment of Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie bin Hj Apdal ('Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie') as the new CM to replace Tan Sri Musa and in the second appeal by Datuk Jahid @ Noordin bin Jahim ('Datuk Jahid'), is also
- I challenging his dismissal as Minister of Local Government and Housing.

[2] We heard the appeal by Tan Sri Musa first. As agreed by parties from the beginning at the Court below, the outcome of the appeal by Tan Sri Musa will finally determine the second appeal by Datuk Jahid.

[3] We heard the appeal on 28 November 2019 whereby after hearing the parties on all the issues raised, we unanimously dismissed both appeals with costs. We now give our reasons for doing so.

BACKGROUND FACTS

[4] The undisputed background facts was well encapsulated in the learned trial judge's judgment. We reproduce them with certain modifications below.

[5] In the 14th General Election ('GE14') held on 9 May 2018, for the State of Sabah, 60 state constituency seats were offered to be contested for election of members of the Sabah State Legislative Assembly ('the State Assembly'). The result of the GE14 was as follows:

C

(a) Barisan Nasional of Sabah ('BN-Sabah') led by Tan Sri Musa, which is a coalition of eight political parties, namely, United Malay National Organisation ('UMNO'), Parti Bersatu Sabah ('PBS'), United Pasokmomogon Kadazandusun Murut Organisation ('UPKO'), Liberal Democratic Party ('LDP'), Parti Bersatu Rakyat Sabah ('PBRs'), Malaysian Chinese Association ('MCA'), Parti Gerakan Rakyat Malaysia ('Gerakan') and Malaysian Indian Congress ('MIC'), won 29 state constituency seats, including Tan Sri Musa's state constituency of N42 Sungai Sibuga;

(b) another coalition led by Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie, made up of Parti Warisan Sabah ('Warisan'), Democratic Action Party ('DAP') and Parti Keadilan Rakyat ('PKR'), won 29 state constituency seats, with Warisan winning 21 seats, DAP winning six seats and PKR winning two seats; and

(c) Parti Solidariti Tanah Airku ('STAR') led by Datuk Dr Jeffrey Kitingan won two state constituency seats.

G

[6] On 9 May 2018, soon after the result of the GE14 was announced by the Election Commission (EC), STAR declared its support for the formation of a coalition government with BN-Sabah. This coalition constituted a simple majority of 31 seats out of 60 seats and it gave Tan Sri Musa the command of majority of the State Assembly.

H

[7] Pursuant to art 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution, on 10 May 2018 at about 11pm, Tan Sri Musa who commanded a simple majority of the members of the State Assembly, was sworn in as the CM by the TYT. The swearing in ceremony was witnessed by the then Chief Justice of Sabah and Sarawak and in the presence of the State Secretary, the State Attorney General and other state dignitaries, government officials and invited guests.

I

- A [8] Immediately after Tan Sri Musa was sworn in as the CM, the TYT acting on the advice of Tan Sri Musa in his capacity as CM, sworn in the State Cabinet pursuant to arts 6(1), 6(2) and 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution. The ceremony was also witnessed by the then Chief Justice of Sabah and Sarawak and in the presence of the State Secretary, the State Attorney General
- B and other state dignitaries, government officials and invited guest.
- [9] After the swearing in of the State Cabinet, Tan Sri Musa handed to the TYT six Instruments of Appointment for the appointment of six additional nominated members of the State Assembly and advised the TYT to execute the same pursuant to art 14(1)(c) of the Sabah State Constitution. However, the TYT refused and did not execute the said Instruments.
- C
- D [10] What transpired on 12 May 2018 at about 10am was news that some members of State Assembly from UPKO had shifted their allegiance to Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie's camp. Later that day, Tan Sri Musa was summoned to the Istana by the TYT. At the meeting the TYT asked Tan Sri Musa to resign as CM. Tan Sri Musa refused to resign and instead he insisted that the TYT executed the six Instruments of Appointment. It was alleged by Tan Sri Musa
- E that the TYT told him 'whether you resign or not, I am going to swear in Shafie at 9pm tonight'. Tan Sri Musa further alleged that at no time did he offer, tender or otherwise indicate his resignation as CM and nor did he request a dissolution of the State Assembly.
- F [11] In the affidavit in opposition affirmed by the TYT, he stated that he had interviewed the six BN Assemblymen who defected and who had signed their respective statutory declarations in that they had declared and affirmed their full support for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie. The TYT was convinced that the majority of the State Assemblymen had on 11 May 2018 switched their
- G allegiance to Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie, who then commanded a simple majority of 35 seats of the State Assembly. Hence, pursuant to art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution, the TYT summoned Tan Sri Musa to the Istana on 12 May 2018 at 10.05am and asked him to tender his resignation as CM together with his Cabinet members. When Tan Sri Musa refused, the TYT averred that in
- H exercise of his personal discretion conferred under art 6(3) read together with art 10(2)(a) of the Sabah State Constitution, the TYT appointed Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie as the CM of the State of Sabah on the night of 12 May 2018.
- I [12] By a letter dated 12 May 2018, the TYT informed Tan Sri Musa that since he no longer commanded the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly, he must tender the resignation of the members of the Cabinet which should include himself pursuant to art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution. The letter was only served on the Tan Sri Musa's representative cum confidential secretary on the 14 May 2018.

[13] On 26 May 2018, upon the advice of Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie, the TYT appointed the other members of the State Cabinet. The swearing in ceremonies were witnessed by the then Chief Justice of Sabah and Sarawak, the state officials and invited guests. A

AT THE HIGH COURT

[16] At the High Court, the learned High Court judge ('learned judge') addressed the following six main and related issues to be decided by Her Ladyship, namely: B

- (a) whether the TYT was acting within his constitutional power when he purportedly dismissed Tan Sri Musa as CM; C
- (b) whether the TYT's appointment of Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie as the CM is ultra vires, null and void;
- (c) whether Tan Sri Musa had lost the confidence of the majority of the State Assembly; D
- (d) whether a vote of no-confidence is the only way to determine that Tan Sri Musa has lost the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly;
- (e) whether there is extraneous resource in support of Tan Sri Musa's loss of confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly; and E
- (f) whether, by Tan Sri Musa's refusal to resign, he is deemed to have vacated the CM post. F

[17] With regard to issues (a) and (c), the learned judge had after considering arts 6 and 7 of the Sabah State Constitution, found that no single political party had won a majority of the elected seats of the State Assembly in GE14 and because of that, no leader of any party can claim that he is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly. Therefore, cl (7) of art 6 of the Sabah State Constitution does not come into play and was not applicable when the TYT exercised his discretion under art 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution. G

[18] For ease of reference we reproduce arts 6 and 7 of the Sabah State Constitution as follows: H

- (1) There shall be a State Cabinet to advise the Yang di-Pertua Negeri in the exercise of his functions.
- (2) The Cabinet shall consist of Chief Minister, and not more than ten nor less than four other members, (to be styled 'Minister') appointed in accordance with clause (3). I
- (3) The Yang di-Pertua Negeri shall appoint as Chief Minister a member of the Legislative Assembly who in his judgment is likely to command the confidence of a

- A majority of the members of the Assembly and shall appoint the other members mentioned in clause (2) in accordance with the advice of the Chief Minister from among the members of the Assembly:
- Provided that if an appointment is made while the Legislative Assembly is dissolved a person who was a member of the last Assembly may be appointed but shall not
- B continue to hold office after the first sitting of the next Legislative Assembly unless he is a member thereof.
- (4) Notwithstanding anything in this Article, a person who is a citizen by naturalisation shall not be appointed Chief Minister.
- C (5) The Chief Minister shall not hold any office of profit and shall not actively engage in any commercial enterprise.
- (6) The Cabinet shall be collectively responsible to the Legislative Assembly.
- (7) For the purpose of clause (3) of this Article, where a political party has won a
- D majority of the elected seats of the Legislative Assembly in a general election, the leader of such political party, who is a member of the Legislative Assembly shall be the member of the Legislative Assembly who is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the Assembly.
- 7(1) If the Chief Minister ceases to command the confidence of a majority of the members of the Legislative Assembly, then, unless at his request the Yang di-Pertua
- E Negeri dissolves the Assembly, the Chief Minister shall tender the resignation of the members of the Cabinet.
- 7(2) A member of the Cabinet may at any time resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the Yang di-Pertua Negeri, and a member of the Cabinet other
- F than the Chief Minister shall also vacate his office if his appointment thereto is revoked by the Yang di-Pertua Negeri acting in accordance with the advice of the Chief Minister.
- 7(3) Subject to clauses (1) and (2), a member of the Cabinet other than the Chief Minister shall hold office at the pleasure of the Yang di-Pertua Negeri.
- G
- [19] On the same two issues, the learned judge further decided that Tan Sri Musa's argument that he could still continue as CM even after the defection of the six State Assemblymen of BN-Sabah because it still retained 23 State Assemblymen compared to the 21 State Assemblymen of Warisan is untenable.
- H With the defection of the six State Assemblymen from BN-Sabah, the coalition led by Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie was increased from 29 to 35 whereas BN-Sabah's State Assemblymen dropped from 29 to 23. This clearly shows that Tan Sri Musa had lost the confidence of the majority of the elected members of the State Assembly.
- I
- [20] As to issue (d), the learned judge agreed with the submission of counsel acting for the TYT and for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie that a no-confidence vote by the members of the State Assembly is not the only way to determine that Tan

Sri Musa has lost the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly. The learned judge held that the TYT can form his own judgment by relying on extraneous sources as decided by the Federal Court in the case of Dato' Seri Ir Hj Mohammad Nizar bin Jamaluddin v Dato' Seri Dr Zambry bin Abdul Kadir (Attorney General, intervener) [2010] 2 MLJ 285 ('the Perak case').

[21] The learned judge rejected learned counsel for Tan Sri Musa argument that the court should follow the decision in Stephen Kalong Ningkan v Tun Abang Hj Openg and Tawi Sli [1966] 2 MLJ 187 ('Stephen Kalong Ningkan's case') and Mustapha bin Harun, Tun Datu Haji v Mohamed Adnan Robert, Tun Datuk Haji (No 2) [1986] 2 MLJ 420 ('Tun Datu Hj Mustapha's case') instead of the Perak case notwithstanding that art XVI(6) of the Perak State Constitution is in pari materia with art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution.

C

[22] Further, the learned judge relied on the case of Datuk (Datu) Amir Kahar bin Tun Datu Haji Mustapha v Tun Mohd Said Bin Keruak Yang Di-Pertua Negeri Sabah & Ors [1995] 1 MLJ 169 ('Amir Kahar's case'). In Amir Kahar's case, Datuk Joseph Pairin Kitingan ('Datuk Pairin') was appointed as CM of Sabah. On the advice of Datuk Pairin, other elected members from his party, including the plaintiff, were appointed to form the State Cabinet. Subsequently due to defection of three members of the Assembly from his party to the opposition, Datuk Pairin requested the first defendant who was the Governor to dissolve the Assembly but the first defendant withheld the consent. Datuk Pairin subsequently tendered his resignation as Chief Minister, but he did not tender the resignation of the other members of his Cabinet. Thereafter the first defendant appointed the second defendant as a new Chief Minister to replace Datuk Pairin. The first defendant, acting on the advice of the new Chief Minister, appointed the third to ninth defendants as the other members of the Cabinet of the second defendant. The plaintiff sought the declaration, inter alia, that since no motion of no confidence was ever tabled in the Assembly against Datuk Pairin, his resignation was personal to him and did not affect the appointment of the plaintiff as a Deputy Chief Minister and Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

G

[23] Learned judge adopted the view of Abdul Kadir Sulaiman J (as he then was) in Amir Kahar's case where His Lordship opined that a vote in the State Assembly is not the only means to determine the confidence of the members of the Assembly in the CM but depends on the circumstances. Other extraneous matters could provide sufficient evidence to establish the fact of the CM ceasing to command the confidence of a majority of the members of the State Assembly for the purpose of art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution.

H

I

[24] The same approach of constitutional interpretation was taken by the Federal Court in the Perak case where Arifin Zakaria CJ (Malaya) (as he then

A was) said at p 299:

[26] NS Bindra's Interpretation of Statutes, (10th Ed) at p 1295 speaks of two theories of interpretation of Constitution namely, the mechanical and organic theories. At p 1296 it stated that the organic method is to be preferred. 'The organic method requires us to see the present social conditions and interpret the B Constitution in a manner so as to resolve the present difficulties'. From the authorities cited above our courts are inclined to the organic theory in the interpretation of the Constitution.

[27] One other important guide in interpretation of Constitution is that, 'The Constitution must be considered as a whole, and so as to give effect, as far as possible, to all its provisions. It is an established canon of constitutional construction that no one provision of the Constitution is to be separated from all the others, and considered alone, but that all the provisions bearing upon a particular subject are to be brought into view and to be so interpreted as to effectuate the great purpose of the instrument. An elementary rule of construction is, that if possible, effect should be given to every part and every word of a D Constitution and that unless there is some clear reason to the contrary, no portion of the fundamental law should be treated as superfluous'.

(See Danaharta Urus Sdn Bhd v Kekatong Sdn Bhd (Bar Concil Malaysia, intervener) [2004] 2 MLJ 257).

E [25] In the Perak case, the Federal Court in dismissing the appellant's appeal had decided that there is nothing in art XVI(6) of the Perak State Constitution which is pari materia to art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution, or in any other provisions stipulating that the loss of confidence in the CM can only be

F established through a vote of no confidence in the State Assembly. Evidence of loss of confidence in the CM may be gathered from other extraneous sources but provided they are properly established. In the present appeal before us, the source was based on the TYT's personal interview of the six BN-Sabah assemblymen who defected and the six statutory declarations executed by them which declared and affirmed their full support for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie to be as CM. By then, Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie commanded a simple majority of 35 seats out of 60 seats of the State Assembly.

H [26] Learned judge further held that it is crystal clear from the decision of the apex court in the Perak case that there is no mandatory requirement for a motion of no confidence to be passed in the State Assembly against the CM before he ceases to command the confidence of the majority members of the Assembly. There is no express provision that there must be such motion in the relevant art XVI(6) of the Perak State Constitution as well in the art 7(1) of the

I Sabah State Constitution.

[27] Although the facts in the Perak case are not identical with the present appeal before us and there is no similar provision in Perak State Constitution as art 10(4) of the Sabah State Constitution, nevertheless the learned judge was of the view that they do not render the principles established inapplicable to the present dispute as the issue raised concerned the interpretation of art XVI(6) which is pari materia or identical to art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution in determining the same issue as to who was the legitimate CM.

A

[28] With regard to the issue at (e), whether there is extraneous evidence in support of Tan Sri Musa's loss of confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly, it was argued by learned counsel for Tan Sri Musa that there must be either an admission by Tan Sri Musa, the incumbent CM of loss of confidence of the majority as in the Perak case or in Ningkan's case and that there was unambiguous and consistent statements by the Assemblymen that the CM has lost their support. It was submitted further that in the present case, Tan Sri Musa never requested for a dissolution of the State Assembly nor did he expressly admit that he had lost the confidence of the majority assemblymen. Learned judge did not agree with learned counsel's said submission and contention.

[29] Her Ladyship relied on Adegbenro v Akintola and Aderemi [1963] 3 WLR 63 which was followed by the learned judge in the Amir Kahar's case at p 194 which held:

E

The fact of a Chief Minister ceasing to command the confidence of a majority of the members of the Assembly can be evidenced by various situations and circumstances. It can be through the knowledge of the Chief Minister himself from the surrounding circumstances or it can be through the actual voting in the Assembly by its members. The lists are not by any means exhaustive. There is no where in the constitution to say that the only evidence of such fact must be through the actual vote in the Assembly.

F

[30] The learned judge was of the view that although Tan Sri Musa did not request for the dissolution of the State Assembly nor did he even admitted loss of confidence of the majority during the audience with the TYT on the 12 May 2018, the TYT can reasonably rely on the six statutory declarations (exhs TYT3–TYT8 of encl 8) to form a judgment that Tan Sri Musa had lost the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly.

G

H

[31] Regarding the issue at para (f) as to whether by Tan Sri Musa's refusal to resign, he was deemed to have vacated the CM's post, the learned judge again relied on the principles of law in the Perak case which upon application to the present dispute, means:

I

- (a) that the word 'shall' in art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution should be given a mandatory effect and it was incumbent, therefore, on Tan Sri Musa who having lost the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly, to tender his resignation of the State Cabinet. The

- A term ‘Cabinet’ includes the CM. Tan Sri Musa refused after being requested by the TYT to do so clearly went against the express provisions of art 7(1); and
- B (b) since Tan Sri Musa refused to tender his resignation of the State Cabinet under art 7(1), he and the members of the State Cabinet are deemed to have vacated their respective offices, paving way for the new State Cabinet to be formed.
- C [32] Following the Amir Kahar’s case, the learned judge held that the dissolution of the State Cabinet under art 7(1) does not involve the TYT or necessarily, the members of the State Assembly. The learned judge further held that the issue whether the TYT had acted ultra vires by dismissing Tan Sri Musa as CM does not arise by reason that Tan Sri Musa is deemed to have vacated his post when he refused to tender his resignation after having ceased to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Assembly of Sabah.
- E [33] Now on to the final issue discussed by learned judge at para (b) as to whether the appointment of Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie as CM was ultra vires, null and void. Relying on the Perak case and the Amir Kahar’s case which decisions were later upheld by the Federal Court, the learned judge’s answer to this final issue is in the negative. As Tan Sri Musa and his State Cabinet was deemed to have vacated their respective posts, it paved the way for the TYT to appoint Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie as the CM of the State of Sabah to replace Tan Sri Musa. This was pursuant to art 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution.
- F Further, as Tan Sri Musa was deemed to have vacated the post of CM, the appointment of Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie as the new CM does not give rise to a preposterous situation of two CMs for the State of Sabah.
- G [34] Besides these issues discussed above, the learned judge had considered the other three side issues, namely: (i) whether the TYT’s exercise of power under art 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution to appoint the CM is non-justiciable; (ii) whether the TYT’s failure to appoint the six nominated members upon Tan Sri Musa’s advice, he lost the majority; and (iii) whether the dispute raised by Tan Sri Musa is academic.
- H
- I [35] On the first issue, the learned judge agreed with learned counsel for the TYT’s argument that the repository power of the TYT to appoint the CM or to withhold the pleasure contemplated in art 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution are exclusive pleasure-cum-discretion of the TYT. This exercise of discretion is an absolute exercise of a prerogative power. As it is the sole and exclusive authority of the TYT to appoint the CM, it cannot be questioned in any court of law.

[36] On the refusal of the TYT to appoint six nominated members as requested by Tan Sri Musa, the learned judge disagreed with learned counsel that was the reason Tan Sri Musa had lost the majority. It was clear from the Tun Mustapha's case that the six appointed members cannot constitutionally be taken into consideration for inflating a seats of a party having a minority of elected seats in order to secure a majority over a party with the majority of elected seats. If it is so, then such a judgment would not be in accordance with the requirements of art 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution.

[37] On the academic issue, it was raised by learned counsel for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie that at the first sitting of the State Legislative Assembly on 11 June 2018, 44 of the State Assemblymen present had pledged and declared their support for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie. It was submitted that the dispute was clearly no longer a live issue but has become academic. Regardless of the outcome of the OS, Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie will remain and will continue to be the CM.

[38] The learned judge relied on the exception as stated in Regina v Secretary of State for the Home Department, ex parte Salem [1999] 1 AC 450 which was referred to by learned counsel for Tan Sri Musa, and learned judge had decided that it does not render the dispute before the court academic as it involves a constitutional issue pertaining to the appointment of CM which is of high public interest that the court should deliver a ruling on it to settle the issue of the interest of the public.

[39] On the final analysis, based on various issues discussed above by the learned judge, Her Ladyship dismissed both OS with costs. Thus, Tan Sri Musa's and Datuk Jahid's appeals before us.

THE SECOND RESPONDENT'S NOTICE OF MOTION

G

[40] On 20 November 2019 before the matter was set for hearing, learned counsel for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie filed a notice of motion in encl 25 and this was fixed for hearing on the 28 November 2019, the same date fixed for the hearing of this appeal. The application was made under r 7 of the Rules of Court of Appeal 1994 to move this court for an order:

H

- (a) that the letter issued by Shafaruddin bin Halide, the Setiausaha Undangan Negeri Sabah dated 3 October 2019 together with the five attached pages containing the names of all the Assemblymen, their respective constituencies and political affiliations be admitted as evidence in this appeal;
- (b) the costs of this application be costs in the cause; and

- A (c) such further relief or other order or relief which this honourable court deems fit and just.

B [41] The application was supported by an affidavit in support sworn and affirmed by Douglas Lind of Messrs Lind Willie Wong & Chin, counsel for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie on the 18 November 2019 at Kota Kinabalu, Sabah. The letter dated 3 October 2019 from the Secretary to the State Legislative Assembly was exhibited in the affidavit in support as exh 'DL1'. Attached to it was the 'Senarai Parti Yang Dianggotai Oleh Ahli Dewan Undangan Negeri Sabah Kelima Belas' ('the Senarai').

C [42] There was no affidavit in opposition filed by neither Tan Sri Musa nor by Datuk Jahid. During the hearing of the application, we were told that learned counsel for both the appellants will only oppose the application solely
D base on points of law and procedures. Learned counsel for Tan Sri Musa raised an objection from the Bar that the deponent of the affidavit in support did not show that he had personal knowledge of the Senarai. Therefore, he submitted the affidavit in support was defective. Learned counsel as well argued that the application was not bona fide as it was filed very late even though the Senarai
E was available as early as October 2019. This, according to learned counsel was calculated as an attempt to scuttle the appellant's appeal.

F [43] In reply, learned counsel for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie said that everyone had knowledge about the current standings of all the 60 members of the Sabah State Assembly. Learned counsel argued that he affirmed the affidavit in support not to verify the facts but rather the production of the letter and the Senarai which was verified by the Secretary to the Sabah State Assembly. On the allegation that the move was to scuttle the appellant's appeal, learned counsel
G rebuke the allegation by saying that the document was very relevant for the ends of justice and will have an impact on the outcome of the appeal on the point raised by the respondents that the appeals were redundant and academic. Learned counsel cited the case of Datuk Seri Panglima Mohd Sari bin Datuk Hj Nuar v Vee Seng Development Sdn Bhd & Ors [2009] 6 MLJ 643; [2009] 2
H MLRA 349, which was a decision of this court.

I [44] The jurisprudence to admit fresh evidence begins with the often cited case of Ladd v Marshall [1954] 3 All ER 745; [1954] 1 WLR 148 where Lord Denning laid down the principles for the reception of fresh evidence in this way:

In order to justify the reception of fresh evidence or a new trial, three conditions must be fulfilled: first, it must be shown that the evidence could not have been obtained with reasonable diligence for use at the trial: second, the evidence must be such that, if given, it would probably have an important influence on the result of

- the case, although it need not be decisive: third, the evidence must be such as is presumably to be believed, or in other words, it must be apparently credible, although it need not be incontrovertible. A
- [45] Subsequently, the approach by the Malaysian Court was that all the three conditions stipulated in Ladd v Marshall, are to be read cumulatively and not disjunctively. Meaning, if any party fails to satisfy any one of the condition, he fails altogether. Although we agree that the conditions are cumulative but it must be emphasised that the discretion to admit fresh evidence falls entirely with the court to whom the application is made. Our view is fortified by the law and the rules applicable in our jurisdiction. This is because of the r 7(3A) of the Rules of the Court of Appeal 1994 and the decision of this Court in Teoh Kien Peng & Anor v Thannimalai all Subramaniam [2008] MLJU 403; [2009] 1 LNS 308. B C
- [46] Section 69 of the Courts of Judicature Act 1964 (Act 91) (Revised 1972) states as follows: D
- 69 Hearing of appeals
- (1) Appeals to the Court of Appeal shall be way of re-hearing, and in relation to such appeals the Court of Appeal shall have all the powers and duties, as to amendment or otherwise, of the High Court, together with full discretionary power to receive further evidence by oral examination in court, by affidavit, or by deposition taken before an examiner or commissioner. E
 - (2) The further evidence may be given without leave on interlocutory applications, or in any case as to matters which have occurred after the date of the decision from which the appeal is brought. F
 - (3) Upon appeals from a judgment, after trial or hearing of any cause or matter upon the merits, the further evidence, save as to matters subsequent as aforesaid, shall be admitted on special grounds only, and not without leave of the Court of Appeal. G
 - (4) The Court of Appeal may draw inferences of fact, and give any judgment, and make any order which ought to have been given or made, and make such further or other orders as the case requires. H
 - (5) The powers aforesaid may be exercised notwithstanding that the notice of appeal relates only to part of the decision, and the powers may also be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although the respondents or parties have not appealed from or complained of the decision. I
- [47] Rule 7 of the Rules of the Court of Appeal 1994 provides as follows:
- 7 Power of Court to amend, admit further evidence, or draw inference of fact
- (1) The Court shall have all the powers and duties, as to amendment or otherwise,

- A of the appropriate High Court, together with full discretionary power to receive further evidence by oral examination in Court, by affidavit, or by the deposition taken before an examiner or Commissioner.
- (2) Such further evidence may be given without leave on interlocutory applications, or in any case as to matters which have occurred after the date of the decision from which the appeal is brought.
- B (3) Upon appeals from a judgment, after trial or hearing of any cause or matter upon the merits, such further evidence, save as to matters subsequent aforesaid, shall be admitted on special grounds only, and not without leave of the Court.
- C (3A) At the hearing of the appeal further evidence shall not be admitted unless the Court is satisfied that:
- (a) At the hearing before the High Court or the subordinate court, as the case may be, the new evidence was not available to the party seeking to use it, or that reasonable diligence would not have made it so available; and
- D (b) The new evidence, if true, would have had or would have been likely to have had a determining influence upon the decision of the High Court or the subordinate court, as the case may be.
- (4) The Court may draw inference of fact, and give any judgment, and make any order which ought to have been given or made, and make such further or other orders as the case requires.
- E (5) The powers aforesaid may be exercised notwithstanding that the notice of appeals relates only to part of the decision, and such powers may also be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties have not appeal from or complained of the decision.
- F [48] In exercise of our discretion, we may admit and rely on the fresh evidence on special grounds under r 7(3) of the Rules of the Court of Appeal 1994. What constitute special grounds had been discussed by Hale LJ in Hertfordshire Investments Ltd v Bubb and Another [2000] 1 WLR 2318. This was what His Lordship Hale LJ said:
- G Special grounds, as we all know, meant that the fresh evidence satisfied the principles in Ladd v Marshall [1954] 1 WLR 1489: that is, that it could not have been obtained with reasonable diligence for use at trial; if given it would probably have had an important influence on the result of the case; and it is apparently credible although not incontrovertible; although there are exceptional cases in which those principles do not apply, for examples those involving the welfare of children.
- H There are, of course, strong reasons for this approach, which has a long pedigree. It is in the interests of every litigant and the system as a whole that there should be an end to litigation. People should put their full case before the court at trial and should not be allowed to have a second bite at the cherry without a very good reason indeed.
- I

[49] Abdul Malik Ishak JCA (as he then was) in Teoh Kien Peng & Anor on similar issue, said at great length:

[52] Ladd v Marshall was decided in 1954. On 2 March 1970, the then Federal Court in Lau Foo Sun v Government of Malaysia [1970] 2 MLJ 70; [1970] 1 MLRA 219 applied Ladd v Marshall. In 1970, the Court of Appeal has not been set up. It was only in 1994 that the Court of Appeal was constituted. So, when the then Federal Court in Lau Foo Sun v Government of Malaysia decided the issue of adducing further evidence, r 7(3A) of the Rules of the Court of Appeal 1994 cannot be invoked for the simple reason that the Rules only came into force on 24 June 1994. We now have rule 7(3A) of the Rules of the Court of Appeal 1994 and we should vigorously apply it to the present appeal at hand instead of resorting wholesale to Ladd v Marshall. A classic example would be the case of Lombard Natwest Factors Ltd v Sebastian Justin Arbis [2000] BPIR 79 (Ch D) where the brief facts may be stated as follows. Natwest sought to re-open a bankruptcy hearing because new evidence had come to light. The question was whether the provisions of r 59.10 in Schedule 1 to the Civil Procedure Rules 1998 ('CPR') should be interpreted in the light of the overriding objective in r 1.2 of the CPR or in the light of the Court of Appeal decision of Ladd v Marshall. The form of wording in r 59.10 in Schedule 1 to the CPR is exactly the same as that adjudicated upon in Ladd v Marshall. Hart J, held that even though the two provisions were worded indently, it did not mean that the old interpretation had to apply. According to His Lordship, r 59.10 in Schedule 1 to the CPR had to be interpreted in the light of the overriding objective.

[53] It is now opportune to narrate the facts in Ladd v Marshall. It is as follows. Ladd claimed repayment of a sum of £1,000 from Marshall. The latter denied receiving the money. At the trial, Ladd called Marshall's wife. In her evidence, she professed to know nothing of the transaction. The trial judge found that Ladd had not proved his case and gave judgment for Marshall. Some months after judgment had been entered, Marshall's wife obtained a divorce from her husband and thereupon she told Ladd's solicitors that she had given false evidence at the trial. Her excuse was that at the time of the trial she was living in Marshall's house and was afraid of telling the truth. Ladd appealed to the Court of Appeal, applying for a new trial, and moved for leave to adduce further evidence. Ladd's counsel argued that the relevant rule of court (then it was RSC O 58, r 4) was in wide terms, that there was a complete discretion in the court which ought not to be fettered to receive further evidence 'if the justice of the case requires it'. Unfortunately, the appeal failed. Denning LJ said that it was very rare that an application was made to the court for a new trial on the ground that a witness had told a lie. His Lordship added that the principles to be applied are the same as those always applied when fresh evidence was sought to be introduced. His Lordship then set out the three conditions as reproduced in the early part of this judgment.

[54] Of course, you cannot allow Ladd v Marshall to stand in the way of doing justice in an individual case. I have said this earlier. When you see this happening, you will notice that the decided cases have been distinguished by the judges and when this happens you will see that the law has become more elaborate. This causes no difficulty because it illustrates the exercise of discretion by the judges to the particular facts of the case.

- A [50] It was the submission of learned counsel for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie that since the piece of evidence arose subsequent to the appeal in which case, the application ought to be allowed under r 7(3A) of the Rules of the Court of Appeal 1994 in that at the hearing before the High Court, the new evidence was not available to the party seeking to use it and that the new evidence, if admitted, would have had a determining influence upon the decision of the High Court.

- C [51] Upon hearing the parties, we find merit in the application in encl 25 to admit fresh evidence. This piece of evidence is of relevance and assistance in this appeal and which was only available after the decision appealed against. The respondent's application in encl 25 was therefore allowed.

- A [53] What can be distilled from the fresh evidence is that at the current standing, Tan Sri Musa's coalition party had only eight seats in the State Assembly including himself. They were as follows:

- B (b) N9 Tamparuli — YB Datuk Jahid Jahim-PBS;
- (c) N11 Kiulu — YB Datuk Joniston Bin Lumai @ Bangkuai-PBS;

PRELIMINARY OBJECTION

- E [54] On the 25 November 2019, three days before the date fixed for the hearing of this appeal, counsel for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie issued a notice to counsel for Tan Sri Musa that they on behalf of Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie would be raising a preliminary objection to the appeal on the ground that the appeal was not competent and that the appeal had become academic and the appeal be
- F dismissed forthwith. The notice given by learned counsel was in the following form:

Tan Sri Musa Bin Haji Aman

... Appellant

And

Tun Datuk Seri Panglima Haji Juhar Haji Mahiruddin
 Datuk Seri Shafie Bin Haji Apdal

... 1st Respondent

... 2nd Respondent

We act Datuk Seri Mohd. Shafie Bin Haji Apdal who is the 2nd Respondent in this appeal.

TAKE NOTICE that at the hearing of this appeal scheduled for 28th November 2019, we will on behalf of the 2nd Respondent be raising a "PRELIMINARY OBJECTION" to the appeal on the ground that it is "NOT COMPETENT" because the appeal has become "ACADEMIC" as the outcome of the appeal will have no effect at all the interests of either the Appellant or the 2nd Respondent and it would merely be an exercise in futility and the appeal be dismissed forthwith.

Thank you

Yours faithfully

A [55] The respondents' application was made under O 33 r 2 of the Rules of Court 2012 which provides:

O 33 r 2: The Court may order any question or issue arising in a cause or matter, whether of fact or law or partly of fact and partly of law, and whether raised by the pleadings or otherwise, to be tried before, at or after the trial of the cause or matter, and may give directions as to the manner in which the question or issue shall be stated.

C [56] We proceeded to hear submissions from both parties on the issue raised by learned counsel for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie ie that the appeal before us was incompetent and had become academic and that it ought to be struck out without hearing the merits of the appeals. The gist of learned counsel for the Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie's submissions on the preliminary objection was that the appeal was not competent as it had become academic because the outcome of the appeal would have no effect on either Tan Sri Musa or Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie based on the fresh evidence duly admitted by this court.

E [57] Based on the letter dated 3 October 2019 from the Secretary of the State Legislative Assembly which we exhibited above, at best Tan Sri Musa could only garnered the support of the eight opposition members including himself. Whereas, Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie has the support of 52 assemblymen including the nine assemblymen from UMNO who had defected to Warisan and thus Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie have the support of more than two-thirds of the members of the State Legislative Assembly.

F [58] Learned counsel further submitted that the State Legislative Assembly at its first sitting on 6 June 2018 after the GE14, had passed a motion of confidence for Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie with a majority of 44 votes out of 59 assemblymen that were present. Learned counsel argued that due to the wide difference in the support between Tan Sri Musa and Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie, even if Tan Sri Musa was successful in his appeal, the outcome will remain merely academic as it will have no effect at all on either party. The status quo remains and Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie would continue to be the CM as he has a large number of assemblymen supporting him.

G

H [59] Learned counsel further submitted that there will be no miscarriage of justice against Tan Sri Musa upon allowing the preliminary objection because it was clear that Tan Sri Musa had lost the confidence of the majority of the members of the State Legislative Assembly thereby triggered art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution.

I

[60] Learned counsel also submitted that by virtue of art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution, it was mandatory for Tan Sri Musa to tender the resignation of the Cabinet, including the CM himself and by his failure to do so, he is deemed to have vacated the office of the CM. Therefore, learned counsel argued that it was correct for the TYT to exercise his constitutional duty by appointing Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie as the CM on the night of 12 May 2018.

A

[61] Sabah State Attorney-General, Datuk Hjh Zaleha Rose bt Datuk Hj Pandin (State AG), acting on behalf of the TYT supported the preliminary objection and adopted Datuk Douglas Lind's submission. The learned State AG emphasized that the dispute was no longer a live issue nor relevant and that the appointment of the CM was the prerogative of the TYT.

B

[62] In opposing the preliminary objection, learned counsel for Tan Sri Musa argued that the instant appeal before us is outside of art 7(1) of the Sabah State Constitution and different from the Perak case. Learned counsel submitted that the TYT's act in appointing Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie was unconstitutional and the issue is very much alive.

DECISION

[63] Let us start with discussing the issue on a declaratory judgment sought by Tan Sri Musa in his statement of claim. There is no doubt in our mind that the power of the court to make a declaratory judgment is discretionary. The court will not make a declaratory judgment when the issue in dispute is purely academic. The court should not be required to answer academic question or issue which is no longer a live issue. The apex court in Husli @ Husly bin Mok (suing as administrator of the estate of Mok bin Tuan, deceased) v Superintendent of Lands and Surveys & Anor [2014] 6 MLJ 766 clearly stated this trite law at p 777 as follows:

F

[27] We shall now deal with question (2) posed in this appeal. We are of the view if question (1) is answered in the affirmative and the plaintiff's right to recovery of damages barred by limitation, the declarations sought for by the plaintiff would be futile. The grant of declaration is in the discretion of the court. The court will not act in vain and grant declarations that are of no utility or in regard to matters which are no longer 'live issue' or has become academic. In support of this proposition we would refer to the following passage of the judgment of Wan Adnan J (as he then was) in Pedley v Majlis Ugama Islam Pulau Pinang & Anor [1990] 2 MLJ 307 at p 308 as follows:

G

H

The power of the Court to make a declaratory judgment is discretionary. The Court will not make a declaratory judgment when the question raised is purely academic. The Court should not be required 'to answer academic question' — Howard v Pickford Tool Co Ltd [1951] 1 KB 417. Although the remedy by way of declaration is wide and flexible yet it will not be granted to a plaintiff whose claim is too indirect and unsubstantial and would not give him 'relief' in any real sense, that is relieve him of any liability or disadvantage or difficulty: Thorne Rural District Council v Bunting [1972] 1 All ER 439.

I

- A [64] In Sun Life Assurance Co of Canada v Jervis [1944] 1 All ER 469, Viscount Simon LC, speaking for the House of Lords, said (at p 470):

B I do not think that it would be a proper exercise of the authority which this House possesses to hear appeals if it occupies time in this case in deciding an academic question, the answer to which cannot affect the respondent in any way. If the House undertook to do so, it would not be deciding an existing lis between the parties who are before it, but would merely by expressing its view on a legal conundrum which the appellant hopes to get decided in its favour without in any way affecting the position between the parties.

- C [65] In Ainsbury v Millington [1987] 1 All ER 929, Lord Bridge, having cited the passage by Viscount Simon LC above, said at pp 930–931:

D It has always been a fundamental feature of our judicial system that the courts decide disputes between the parties before them; they do not pronounce on abstract questions of law when there is no dispute to be resolved.

- E [66] In Hutcheson v Popdog Ltd [2012] 2 All ER 711, Lord Neuberger MR laid down the three requirements which have to be satisfied before an appeal, which is academic as between the parties, be allowed to proceed. At p 715 the Law Lord said this:

F [15] Both the cases and general principle seem to suggest that, save in exceptional circumstances, three requirements have to be satisfied before an appeal, which is academic as between the parties, may ((and I mean ‘may’) be allowed to proceed: (i) the court is satisfied that the appeal would raise a point of some general importance; (ii) the respondent to the appeal agrees to it proceeding, or is at least completely indemnified on costs and is not otherwise inappropriately prejudiced; (iii) the court is satisfied that both sides of the argument will be fully and properly ventilated.

- G [67] In an earlier decision of the Court of Appeal in Bowman v Fels [2005] 4 All ER 609, Brooke LJ held that in public law matters, such as the case before us, appeals which were academic between the parties would not be heard save for permitted exceptions such as when the appeal is in the public interest for the court to decide on an important and difficult point of law arising out of the interpretation of a recent statute.

- H [68] Back to our jurisdiction, in Datuk Syed Kechik bin Syed Mohamed & Anor v Board of Trustees of Sabah Foundation & Ors and another application [1999] 1 MLJ 257, Edgar Joseph Jr FCJ, said at p 264:

I Having said that, this court does not sit to decide abstract or academic or hypothetical question of law regarding which the parties are not in dispute. Thus, in Ainsbury v Millington [1987] 1 All ER 929, Lord Bridge said this (at pp 930–931):

It has always been a fundamental feature of our judicial system that the courts decide disputes between the parties before them; they do not pronounce on abstract questions of law when there is no dispute to be resolved.

A

[69] In the most recent decision of the apex court in Bar Council Malaysia v Tun Dato' Seri Arifin bin Zakaria & Ors (Persatuan Peguam-Peguam Muslim Malaysia, pencilah) and another case [2018] MLJU 1288; [2018] 10 CLJ 129 which involved the appointment of respondents as Chief Justice of Malaysia and President of the Court of Appeal after their mandatory retirement, respectively. The issue before the court was whether their appointments were valid and constitutional and whether the matter has been rendered academic when both the respondents issued their letters of resignation and the same were consented to by the Yang di-Pertuan Agong. The apex court in dismissing the references gave a very lucid judgment which merited some lengthy reproduction as follows:

52. The general position applies equally to constitutional questions. In Bhewa & another v Government of Mauritius & Another [1992] Lexis Citation 3959, the Privy Council declined to determine a question concerning the constitutionality of a statute in Mauritius. The question was rendered academic, for the effect of the impugned act had subsequently been reversed by another act. In light of the new act, which was brought to the attention of the Privy Council on the day of the hearing, the appellant's counsel 'did not feel in a position to present any substantive argument in support of the appeal'. In the circumstances, the Privy Council considered that 'it would not be appropriate to make any order in the appeal either as to its disposed or as to costs'.

53. The question before us is this. In view of the fundamental changes in the governance of the judiciary with the departure of the Second and Third Respondents, the stark issues as housed in the questions posed have now become blunted by consequential events.

F

54. It bears repeating that the illegality alleged has been superseded by subsequent events. As such, the subject matter of the dispute — the constitutionality of the judges holding their respective offices (2nd and 3rd Respondent) is no longer in existence. Their replacements have been made. What then is the dispute that needs to be resolved?

G

55. The outcome of the constitutional reference will not affect the positions of the parties at all. No order can be made to give effect to the issue. In other words, there is now no remedy that this court can order, to give effect to the Applicant's view on the constitutionality of the appointments.

H

56. The Applicants, the amicus curiae and the interveners contended that the questions raised in the case need to be answered, for they are not moot, that they are 'live' issues and that therefore they necessitate a judgment from this court.

I

57. Although it is not unusual for the court to hear cases which may have become academic or hypothetical, this discretion is to be exercised sparingly.

58. The authorities indicate that in such a case, the court has a narrow discretion to proceed, for it is to be exercised with caution.

A Public Law exception

59. One limited exception to the general rule is in relation to questions of public law. In R v Secretary of State for the Home Department ex p Salem [1999] AC 450 at 456, Lord Slynn of Hadley held:

B ... in a cause where there is an issue involving a public authority as to a question of public law, their Lordships have a discretion to hear the appeal, even if by the time the appeal reaches the House there is no longer a lis to be decided which directly affect the rights and obligations of the parties inter se. However the discretion to hear disputes must be exercised with caution, and academic appeals should not be heard 'in the public interest for doing so.

C 60. By way of example, features of academic cases suitable for determination include: (a) discrete point of statutory construction (b) a situation where it does not involve detailed considerations of fact and (c) a situation where there is a large number of similar cases which need to be resolved.

D 61. This case clearly does not appear to fall within the Salem exception for public law matters.

E 62. In this case, as in Salem, 'the factors are by no means straightforward and in other cases the problem of when a determination is made may depend on the precise factual context of each case'. The factual matrix of the case was novel; no other similar controversy has arisen before or since. Following Bhewa (supra), especially if counsel chooses not to advance any submissions in light of the subsequent development, it would not be appropriate for the court to make a determination on the questions posed.

F 63. We agree with the Attorney General Chambers that the issues in the motion are academic and that a judgment need to be issued by this court. We reiterate the view that it is not the function of the courts to decide hypothetical questions which do not impact on the parties before them. This point was well put by the Lord Justice Clerk (Thomson) in Macnaughton v Macnaughton Trustees [1953] SC 387, 392:

G Our courts have consistently acted on the view that it is their function in the ordinary run of contentious litigation to decide only live, practical questions, and that they have no concern with hypothetical, premature or academic questions, nor do they exist to advise litigants as to the policy which they should adopt in the ordering of their affairs. The courts are neither a debating club nor an advisory bureau. Just what is a live practical question is not always easy to decide and must, in the long run, turn on the circumstances of the particular case. (Emphasis added.)

H 64. The above view was endorsed by Lord Scott of Froscoe in R (Rusbridge & Another) v Attorney General [2004] 1 AC 357, who said that 'the valuable time of the courts should be spent on real issues.' The Court does not act in vacuo nor does it act in vain. Shorn of the legal rhetoric, the fundamental purpose of the application was to ensure that the Second and Third Respondents whose appointment have been alleged to be unconstitutional was to be removed from the position, or for them to vacate their position with immediate effect.

I 65. The legal construction of the question posed was specially in that factual context. But as mentioned before both Second and Third Respondent have since

- relinquished their post. And since matters have change irrevocably by reason of their resignation*, it is no longer tenable for the court to answer the question posed because the factual substratum underlying the question posed no longer exists. Therefore the court would effectively be acting in a vacuum. A
66. In fact in such a situation as this, where there is no more a live issue and where the Salem exceptions do not apply, the position taken by the Applicants, the intervener and amicus curiae is called into question. B
67. In this, we decline to issue a judgment for there is no issue to be decided by us. The Second and Third Respondents have left their positions. The Applicants have nothing to fight for, because they have already achieved their purpose. C
68. In this too, we echo the sentiment expressed by the House of Lords in Ainsbury v Millington (supra) that it is the duty of counsel and solicitors in any pending appeal in publicly funded litigation (although this is not strictly publicly funded), that whenever an event occurs which arguably disposes of the lis, either to ensure that the appeal is withdrawn by consent or, if there is no agreement to that cause, to bring the facts promptly to the attention of the court, to seek directions. In this, the Applicants did nothing of the sort. D
69. In this connection, 'this court has inherent power to control its own process and it is entitle to bring arguments to a close when it is clear that nothing of value will be lost, by ending it.' (Attorney-General v Scriven 4 February 2000 unreported, CA). E
- [70] The position in India is no different. In Loknath Padhan v Birendra Kumar Sahu 1974 AIR 505, the Supreme Court of India held on the same issue that it is well settled practice recognised and followed in India that its decision one way or the other would have no impact on the position of the parties, it would be a waste of public time and indeed not a proper exercise of authority for the court to engage itself in deciding it. In his judgment, Justice Bagwati said: F
- ... it would be clearly futile and meaningless for the court to decide an academic question, the answer to which would not affect the position of one party or the other. The court would not engage in a fruitless exercise. It would refuse to decide a question, unless it has a bearing on some right or liability in controversy between the parties. If the decision of a question would be wholly ineffectual so far as the parties are concerned, it would be not only unnecessary and pointless but also inexpedient to decide it and the court would properly decline to do so. G
- The appellant too does not come to this court to know what the law is in this country on a hypothetical issue. The appellant wants his proposed amendments to be admitted. But, even if this court were to answer the question posed in a way that he would like this court to answer, still this court would not be able to make the order that he requires. H
- [71] In the appeal before us, as we alluded to earlier, learned counsel for Tan Sri Musa and Datuk Jahid in opposing the preliminary objection argued that the projected appeal should proceed as the matter was of public importance and that the issue is very much alive. We disagree with learned counsel's I

- A argument because from the declaratory reliefs sought by the appellants which they are private law in nature even though important but had been overtaken by the subsequent event which rendered the matter academic. Even if Tan Sri Musa is successful with his appeal, the outcome will remain merely academic because Datuk Seri Mohd Shafie would still remain as CM because of the majority support he currently enjoys.
- B

- [72] Therefore, although the issues relating to who is the rightful CM of the Sabah State as raised in the projected appeal is significant, it is not of outstanding public importance because even if the projected appeal were to succeed, which is at best from Tan Sri Musa point of view, that will not make him the new CM again as he does not meet the threshold under art 6(3) of the Sabah State Constitution. The learned judge has not erred when she refused the declaratory and injunctive reliefs sought by the appellant.
- C

D CONCLUSION

- [73] For the reasons given, we accordingly upheld the preliminary objection raised by the respondent for the issues in dispute between the parties in the projected appeal were academic. Therefore, we dismissed both appeals with costs without considering the merits.
- E

PO upheld; both appeals dismissed without considering their merits.
